Tues 6/13/2017 6.5 miles

I describe below a 2 mile course that I call the “Hill Course” in case any local runners want to try it. I use this course every so often.

The bottom of Spring St near the entrance to the bypass is one of the lowest points in Meadville.

The top of Hamilton Rd near the entrance to the fairgrounds is one of the highest points.

The following path between these points is almost exactly 2 miles long.

up Spring and Prospect to Park, up Park to Allegheny, up Allegheny and Limber to Hamilton, up Hamilton to the highest point on Hamilton.

This path has almost a continuous rise, except for a ¼ mile stretch from the highest point on Limber Rd near the water tower to Hamilton Rd.

Where Grandview Ave meets Limber Rd is about the one mile mark (½ way) on the course.

The total ascent is 460 ft (measured with Google Earth) for the 2 miles.

Today's workout: I warmed up by running 2 miles in about 20:00, rested 10:00 and jogged ¼ mile.

I did a 4 mile run. I started half way up on the Hill Course and ran 1 mile down to the bottom of Spring St. I turned around and ran the 2 miles up the Hill Course to the top of Hamilton. I turned again and ran 1 mile to where I started.

Splits: 1mile 7:32 (down hill), 2 miles 20:39 (up hill, total ascent: 460 ft), 1 mile 8:06 (down hill).

Total time 36:17 or 9:04/mile

I warmed down with a ¼ mile walk. It was about 80 degrees at the end of the run.
